MANSFIELD FOUNDATION PUBLISHES NEW BOOK EXAMINING THE IDEAL SECURITY STATE IN NORTHEAST ASIA 2025

WASHINGTON, D.C. The Maureen and Mike Mansfield Foundation, a non-profit organization that promotes understanding and cooperation in U.S.-Asia relations, is pleased to announce the publication of a new book. “Toward an Ideal Security State for Northeast Asia 2025” is the product of a research partnership designed to identify the “ideal” state of peace and security in Northeast Asia in 2025 and to further explore issues related to that ideal. The Mansfield Foundation partnered with the Advanced Systems and Concepts Office of the Defense Threat Reduction Agency (DTRA) and the Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC) on this project, which brought experts from Asia and the Pacific together for two workshops to identify an ideal security situation for Northeast Asia in the year 2025 as well as current and likely future trends diverging from that ideal. Scholars from throughout the region were then asked to address seven key issues related to the ideal security state for Northeast Asia in 2025 and to make policy recommendations to close the gap between current trends and the identified ideal. Their papers, which address topics ranging from the impact of the global financial crisis to the implications of China’s continuing rise, are compiled in the book, which is now available on the Foundation’s website
